DOG

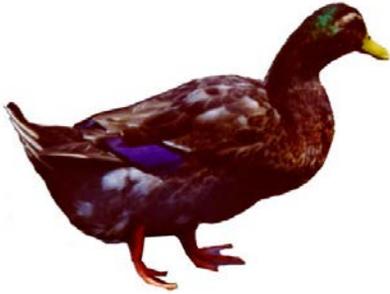

There are several different ways to do the sign for dog.

A popular sign for "dog" is made by slapping your right flat hand against your leg, then snapping your fingers. Or you can snap your fingers once then slap your leg. You can also fingerspell D-O-G.

This shows the bending ear of a donkey,

DUCK

The thumb and first and second fingers open and close, like a "bill" twice as if you were quacking twice.

EAGLE

Tap the nose twice with the back of an "X" hand (as if representing the curved beak of an eagle).

ELEPHANT

A flat hand to show the trunk. Start near your nose and then move downward and outward.

FLY

Use an "F" handshape and pretend you are holding a fly between your index finger and thumb. Wiggle your hand around as if the fly were buzzing around in the air. Another sign is to "catch" the fly.

FISH

The right hand waves back and forth while moving forward a few inches. This resembles the movement of a fish swimming through water.

GOAT

Use a bent-V handshape. Touch your chin, then touch your upper forehead. The handshape starts and stays in a "bent-V" like shape, like a goat's beard and horns.

Make the letter "v" with your right hand (if you are right handed). Your left forearm is extended with your hand either closed or open, palm downward. Bring the right hand down onto the top of the left forearm, clip a bit of hair (as if your index and middle fingers were scissors). Then withdraw the right hand an inch, open up the "scissors," bring your right hand slightly further up the left forearm and clip another swatch of imaginary hair from your imaginary sheep.

SNAKE

Make a "bent V" handshape.

"Slither" your hand forward a few inches similar to the way a snake slithers on the ground.

SPIDER

Use "curved 5-hands" to represent the legs of a spider. Wiggle the fingers up and down as you move the sign forward a short distance.

TURTLE

Cover an "A" hand with a "curved hand." (The "A" hand should be your dominant hand. Thus, if you are right handed, your left-hand should be on top.) Move the thumb of your "A" hand side to side a couple times as if representing the head of a turtle.
