Talk, Sing, Read, Write, Play – Every Day

Our Ready to Read program is a parent education initiative designed to help families prepare children (birth-preschool) for kindergarten while providing the information and tools needed to build early literacy skills.

One of the actions that the program encourages is for parents to talk, sing, read, write and play with their children in order to help them learn and grow. While especially critical for babies and children before kindergarten, these activities are beneficial at any age.

So while you're at home, we encourage you to practice these daily!

Keep Your Children Reading

Help your child improve their reading skills through BookFlix, an online tool designed that provides books that kids can choose to read aloud, to themselves or follow along with while the book is narrated. Additionally, through BookFlix, children can watch an animated version of each book as well as participate in "puzzlers" with each book featuring word matches, quizzes and more.

You'll also find an entire section designated just for children on OverDrive/Libby. Here you'll find tons to choose from including read-alongs, adventure books, picture books and more.
