

Online Instruction and Recordings

Teachers may record online classes so that students can access them later. In some cases, a student's image may appear in the online class and recording. Conducting and recording online classes, even though a student's image may appear, is permissible under the law. Students, parents, guardians, caregivers, teachers or others are prohibited from disseminating a recording of an online class to anyone other than a student in that class or the student's parent/guardian.

During online instruction, students should be working independently and individually to the extent possible. Parents/guardians should only intervene in their student's online instruction when necessary for the student to access the online instruction or with the teacher's prior approval. Students and parents/guardians should treat online instruction with the utmost privacy and confidentiality at all times.
